

THE LID IS ON AT MADISONVILLE

Mayor D. W. Gallin. Will Have
Sunday Closing Law
Enforced.

FIRMS NOTIFIED BY
CHIEF OF POLICE

The lid is on at Madisonville and the Sunday closing law will be enforced. Chief of Police Graddy acting under instructions of Mayor Quinn has notified all firms they must close on Sunday. Nothing has drug stores will remain open and they only to sell medicine. This action was taken on account of some of the soft drink establishments that have been giving trouble and the Mayor and City Council have been petitioned by a goodly number of citizens to have these resorts closed. As the Mayor saw the situation he could not discriminate and the only thing left for him to do was to close them all.

A Statement From Mr. Quinn.
"The violation of the ordinance regulating Sunday closing has become so universal that we are seriously handicapped in the enforcement of the law, and it is our purpose to take a firmer grip on the situation. Numerous complaints, both from the business people, as well as from the citizens generally, are constantly being made of the violation of the Sunday closing law, and a number of the business people are anxious to observe the law if it is made applicable to all alike."

"Certain places in the city that are hard to police and control have equipped themselves with such articles as are sold in drug stores on Sunday in order that they may remain open on Sunday, and it is necessary that there be a more uniform observance of the law in this respect."

Chief of Police Graddy stated that he had been ordered by the Mayor to enforce the Sunday closing law and would arrest all violators.

From what the Semi Weekly Bee could gather the people are about equally divided on the question, some favoring a strict enforcement of the law and others in favor of a wide open town while quite a number are favorable of allowing these places to open certain hours on the Sabbath day.

The Bee called up the livery firm of Rudd & Cardwell, Barnett & Crow and the two Barnhills and they all stated they would be open for business on Sunday as usual and would rent their horses and vehicles.

Section 34, of the city ordinances provides that:

"No work or business shall be done on the Sabbath day, except the ordinary household offices or other work of charity or necessity."

"If any person on the Sabbath day be found at his own or any other trade or calling or shall employ his apprentices or other persons in labor or other business whether the same be for profit or amusement, unless he is permitted above, he shall be fined not less than two, nor more than fifty dollars for each offense."

"Every person or apprentice so employed shall be deemed a separate offense. Persons who are members of a religious society, who observe a Sabbath day any other day in the week than Sunday, shall not be liable to the penalties prescribed in this ordinance, if they observe as the Sabbath one day in each seven as herein provided."

This ordinance is an exact copy of section 1328 of the Kentucky Statutes also enforce throughout the State.

Although legally married Hugh O'neary, of this city, aged 17, and Miss Willie Poole, aged 12 years, of Nortonville are not living together.

The boy's mother and brother were in favor of the marriage and decided to accompany the couple to Springfield Tennessee, where they were married Tuesday morning. They left here on the Dixie Flyer and were married immediately after arriving at Springfield, returning home on the next northbound train.

Jeff Poole, the father of the girl, who is a coal miner at Nortonville, was violently opposed to the match on account of a personal dislike for the boy and also on account of the tender years of his daughter.

When the Dixie Flyer north bound came through Nortonville Tuesday night Poole jumped on the train, seized his daughter by the arm and informed the husband and relatives that he was going to take the girl home and did not want to see any of them around.

He took the girl off the train and that was the last of her husband has seen of her. The husband, brother and mother protested against the actions of Poole, but to no effect. When asked by an Earlinton man why he let the old man take his wife, O'neary replied, "I had no gun and could not help myself." Friends are trying to smooth out the matrimonial trouble of this young couple.

STEEL CARS WIT-
STAND COLLISION

Serious Test Given Steel Train on Pennsylvania--Would Have Crushed Wooden Cars.

Altoona, Pa., Nov. 16.--Mauhattan Limited, east bound over the Pennsylvania, due here at 2:10 a. m., had a narrow escape from serious wreck at Sang Hollow, seven miles west of Johnstown, when the train, it is said, mistook a snowcapped signal for a white block. It plunged into the rear end of an east bound freight, but the limited composed of all steel cars withstood the force of the collision and no one was injured, although the postal car, combination car and one of the sleepers were derailed. The impact would have crushed the old style wooden cars.

THE U. S. A.

By Wilbur D. Nisbet in Chicago Evening Post.

There's them that want to get us sheered by tellin' us o' things they're feared. They say we're goin' to th' dogs. An' that if we don't skip to them Our fate's not be with a dem!

But I want to say Th' U. S. A.

Ain't figgerin' to run that way.

I've noticed things for many years; I've seen these men arousin' cheers-- These pluck hat men with long-tail' coats That tell us how to cast our votes.

I've noticed, too, their ideas is That votin's all th' people's biz.

But I want to say Th' U. S. A.

Ain't only jest election day

I've seen 'em lift their trimblin' arm An' do their pintin' with alarm--

Afore election! An' I've seen How they don't do much work between Election! Seems to save their brains For workin' durin' th' campaign.

An' I want to say Th' U. S. A.

Don't give them fellerlites O. K.

There's one or two that I won't name That keeps a firm hand-holt on Fame

By stormin' up an' down th' road A-tellin' us what long we've knowed--

That is, they rise to heights sublime Along election time.

Yit I want to say Th' U. S. A.

Ain't figgered yit to turn their way.

It ain't th' men that tell us sirs That almost always sometin' wins--

It's them that roll their sleeves an' helps While these yere talkin' human yelps,

That makes us know our nature land Has got a crew that's full o' sand,

An' makes us say Th' U. S. A.

Is settin' tight an' here to stay.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL ANNUAL

Old Officials Re-elected With the Exception of Harahan.

New York, Nov. 16.--The old officers of the Illinois Central railroad, with the exception of President J. T. Harahan, who is to retire next January, when he reaches the age limit, were re-elected to-day by the directors of the railroad.

No action was taken by the directors with respect to choosing a successor to Mr. Harahan, who retires from office on January, 12. The intention was forthcoming that Mr. Harahan might resign office before the December meeting of the directors, when a new president may be selected. Directors of the company were loath to talk of Mr. Harahan's retirement.

Trouble Over Sale of Madisonville Fair Grounds.

Trouble has arisen over the sale of the fair grounds, which took place last week, following the foreclosure of a mortgage, at the court house to pay a debt of $1,049.49, of ten years standing. The sale however brought more than was expected being bid in at $5,500 by Willie N. Ridd. Some of the stockholders objected to the sale of the grounds that only enough of the land should be sold as may be necessary to pay the debt.

A meeting of the stockholders has been called to be held at the law office of Gordon, Gordon & Cox, on Saturday, November 20, to consider the situation and take such action as the stockholders deem best.

It was Mr. Ridd's intention to leave the grounds to fair promoters.

AD-TALK

What would you think of a salesman who reported for duty one day, lay off for two, worked a half day, went off for a week and so on without any regularity? Surely you would not expect good service from such a man. And yet some merchants hold advertising, which is simply a "salesman," up to great results when it is allowed to "work" very irregularly. The fact that advertising costs money is proof of its value. Things without cost are usually worth only their price.

His Secret

By NATHAN HARDY.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

When I was at the university the set of students to which I belonged contained Oscar Poland—at least Poland was at one time a member of our group—but as time wore on he was gradually dropped by all except Alan Wells and myself. This was on account of the principles, or lack of principles, he advocated. For instance, he asserted that the Spartan code—that the criminality attached to stealing was in getting caught—would apply in most cases today. He declared that he would rob any one if he could do so without being detected.

When Poland gave me such ideas as this at first we laughed at him, telling him that he didn't believe what he said. But pessimists are never popular, and one by one his friends dropped away from him. As I have said, Wells and I stuck to him, feeling all the while that his pessimism was but skin deep. The only way we could see he proved his theory of general selfishness was by declining to spend his money as we spent ours. When we asked him what he did with his surplus cash he said that he was keeping it for his own use. "You fellows," he would say, "don't spend money on each other because you wish to, but because you are afraid of being considered mean if you don't. Ergo, you are mean. Nevertheless I will admit that there may be some generosity in your case. For you do spend your money, while I, who do not spend mine, show myself to be absolutely mean and selfish."

This would start new arguments that had already been worn threadbare, and at the end of every argument Poland would lose another friend.

"What do you think of a man," said one of our set to me one day, "who admits that he would rob or steal provided he was sure of not being caught?"

"In the case of a common thief who practiced what he preached," I replied. "I would think him an element of society that should be so far as possible eliminated. In the case of Oscar Poland I should consider that I did not understand him."

"Not understood him? Well, I like that. The more fool you if you should leave funds within his grasp that he could take without being detected. I tell you the man who declares such ideas shows that he has been born blind to principle the same as another has been born blind to colors. Take my word for it, if he could blind ever finds an opportunity to make himself rich at another's expense he'll do it."

"They say business is but legalized robbery."

"My opinion of you is that you're fractured with these fanciful yearnings."

And so it was that some of our associates came to show some coolness to Wells and me, who defended Poland. Alan and I were talking the matter over one day, and Alan remarked that he wondered what Oscar did with his money. There was certainly no evidence of his hoarding it, and as to spending it, he was considered too mean to offer a friend a cigar. That same evening we were walking along one of the principal streets of the town when suddenly Poland appeared ahead of us.

"Let's shadow him," said Alan. "We may find out something."

"If I thought for a moment we should discover something that would compromise him I would decline. As it is I'm with you."

So we lagged behind just far enough to keep Oscar in sight, now and again dodging behind a pair of steps or a tree to keep him from observing us. Presently we saw him go into a dry goods store. When he left the store he carried a bundle under his arm. He kept on in his course we following. His next stop was at a drug store.

"Going to buy arsenic and take a dose now and then when no one sees him," Alan remarked.

One more stop and we had seen all of our quarry's purchases. He entered a toy store.

"I have it," exclaimed Alan. "He's married and running a family with out the faintest knowing it."

"Perhaps you're right," I replied. "The chase is getting interesting."

Oscar left the toy store with more bundles and turning off the main shopping street, pursued one that led into a mean portion of the town.

"I hope," said Alan, "he isn't bringing up his children in this location."

Presently Oscar stopped at the door of a little cottage that was rotting away. It was opened for him, and he went inside.

"Our game's blocked," I said. "Wait till he goes away."

We waited half an hour, when Oscar left the house and strolled nonchalantly down the street. He had no sooner gone beyond recall than we knocked at the door from which he had emerged. A pale woman opened it.

"We're looking for Oscar Poland," said Alan, entering without an invitation.

Well, it was all out. Several little children one of them ill were there. Another was trying on some new clothing, and by the side of a table stood a bottle of medicine.

We stared long enough to discover that the man we had seen several times Oscar was caring for, then went away, ashamed into a small gift of our own.

But we never told him or any one else we had secret.

ANOTHER RECORD FOR AIRMAN

Eugene Ely First to Fly From Steamer Deck to the Shore

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 12.—Eugene Ely, flying in the Curtiss biplane, "Hawkeye," yesterday made the first successful aeroplane flight on record from the deck of a vessel.

From a point in Lower Chesapeake Bay, presumed to be about thirty miles from Norfolk Navy yard, his objective point, Ely this afternoon sailed from the deck of the United States scout cruiser Birmingham, landing within fifteen minutes afterwards at Willoughby Spit, a narrow strip of sand running out from the main land on the south side of Hampton Roads, just opposite Old Point Comfort, and about eight miles from Norfolk.

When Ely flew from the deck of the cruiser, his biplane struck the water and broke one of its propeller blades. This forced him to make a landing after he had traveled a distance of about two miles. The biplane landed on the sandy beach only a few feet from the water. Ely was uninjured.

"Bad Jake" Noble Alive and Still at Large

Jackson, Ky., Nov. 10.—"Bad Jake" Noble is still alive and at large, and his place of hiding is a mystery. The officers of Breathitt county are receiving some criticism for not securing the outlaw's arrest and an effort is being made to raise a searching party of private citizens to make a search of the entire county in an effort to locate and arrest the assassin.

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. Sold by Geo. King & Sons.

County Board of Education Holds Meeting

The county board of education met in Madisonville Monday with John Harland, Paul Moore, C. H. Eastwood, M. F. Cox, B. L. Franklin, G. B. Harrelson, J. L. O'Bryan and A. J. Fox present. Graddy Hampton was the only absent member.

Very little business of importance came up before the meeting. The report on the completion of the Hulse school house was accepted and the building ordered to be paid for. All the claims presented to the board were allowed and ordered paid.

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never disappointed them. Sold by Geo. King & Sons.

Stork Visits White House, Brings a Baby to First Cow of Land

Washington, D. C.,—There was an addition to the White House family eleven days, November 8 when Pauline Wayne, the first cow of the land, gave birth to a husky boy calf in the White House stables. The youngster weighed 100 pounds and was christened "Governor Sim." At the stable it was reported that "both mother and infant are doing well." Pauline Wayne is a cow of wonderful pedigree, presented to President Taft by Senator Stephenson, of Wisconsin.

This article was handed to the St. Louis Weekly B by Mayor J. R. Smith, of this city, who suggests that the name of the calf now be changed to "Governor Dix."

Many school children suffer from constipation, which often is the cause of seeming stupidity at lessons. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child, for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation. Sold by Geo. King & Sons.

Maxwell Stock Company Engagement Three Nights

The Maxwell Stock Company opened an engagement of a week at the Lexington Opera House last night with "A Wyoming Girl," a strong drama of the West, that took well with an appreciative audience. The company carries with it special scenery, and its corps of a score of players is well chosen and well adapted to the various roles. Miss Daisy Hazelton, in the leading role of "A Wyoming Girl," captivated her audience with the manner in which she portrayed the character of a rolicking western girl, and every member of the cast did creditable work. The specialties introduced between the acts were unusually good—Lexington Herald.

Four-Fifths of Your Store's Patrons Were Won by Advertising—And Four-Fifths of These Would Be Lost if You Stopped Advertising!

Newspaper advertising is a part of all worth-while store-service—a part of it which patrons particularly value. For it keeps them in touch with your store-events, your sales, the arrival of new stocks, the showing of novelties, the buying opportunities which your store must create for its friends.

The advertising becomes the link between the store and its clientele. They expect the store's advertising to SERVE THEM—"not now and then," not partially; but ALWAYS, and fully! To curtail the advertising—in volume or frequency—would make the same impression on them as though you moved into smaller quarters and cut down your force of clerks and workers. To INCREASE your advertising—to make it more complete as "store news," as a "market letter," as a bulletin of bargains—will have the effect of enlisting a lot of new store-friends every day, and of winning anew all of the old ones!

The Old Order Changeth

Time was when young men thought it necessary to go to the larger cities and towns to purchase their clothing in order to secure the proper suit and a correct fit. NOW the young men can get the correct thing in a suit with the correct fit in the smaller places, BUT minus the Extra Cost necessary to maintain the stores in the larger places. We attribute our clothing success to the fact that in handling one of the noblest line of clothing to be had we are able to sell them cheaper than our competitors, in the larger places, and we want every young man that wants clothes and is particular about them to examine our line and let us demonstrate to him where we can save him money.

A New Method of Rescue

By ROCKEOLD KING

Copyright, 1903, of American Press Association

People wondered why I took such interest in aeroplanes, and I continually practiced in driving them, why I studied different makes. Then, when I had taken a flight into a distant land, as one kind of a rescue, my return all my interest in air navigation had vanished, they wondered still more.

I have been a great traveler, though I am not yet thirty years old. Some years ago while in Russia I made the acquaintance, followed by the friendship, of a member of the American embassy of St. Petersburg. In this way I saw something of court life there. One night at a function at the Winter palace I was introduced to the daughter of a general in the Russian service. Not for an earldom would I give her name, so I shall call her Sophia. In my travels I have picked up a number of foreign languages. Russian I speak tolerably, and Sophia spoke some English. There usually comes in a man's name, if it comes when he is young, some woman who appeals to him as no other woman has ever appealed to him. From the moment I met Sophia I knew that she had risen up in my path when I must possess, also the vitality had passed out of my life.

I went to my hotel after my first meeting with her to find a whole half the night with the countess feeling in having found a mate, and the other half I dreamed of her. From that time for several months I was with her as often as I could. She allowed. I danced with her, I skated with her, I met her at the opera and on court gale occasions. She gave me unmistakable signs that in me she had found what I had found in her. But when I came to tell her my story her whole manner changed.

"No, no, no," she moaned. "I have permitted myself to sink into a dream. You have awakened me. I have done very wrong. Go away from me. Forget me."

What there was between her and me that led her to talk thus I could not induce her to tell. I left Russia and tried to forget her. I continued my travels, but the interest for me had gone out of the curiosities of travel. The pyramids, the Sphinx, the works of art that had before fascinated me, were now unable to move me.

One day I took up a newspaper and saw by telegraph from Russia that a conspiracy against the life of the czar had been discovered and that the daughter of a prominent general had been implicated. Something told me that she was Sophia. I returned to St. Petersburg to learn that my anticipation was correct. The girl I loved had already been sent to Siberia. Now I understood her action toward me.

I felt that a great work had sprang up before me—the work of liberating Sophia. A famous traveler was in St. Petersburg at the time and was about to start, with the permission of the Russian government, to write up the condition of Siberian exiles. I succeeded in inducing him to appoint me his secretary, or amanuensis. In this way I would be able to locate the girl I had made up my mind to free. On arriving in the prison region I learned that Sophia's father had been enabled to secure for her simply exile, not imprisonment. She was living in a hut close by a prison. Escape for her was as impossible as if she had been within stone walls. But her position was encouraging for one, whose life work was to take her out of Siberia.

I saw her, talked with her and told her that during the same month (August) the following year to expect me with means by which to give her freedom.

That autumn and winter I was known to be one of the principal devotees to the navigation of the air. I tried every kind of aeroplane that had been invented. I made long flights both by day and by night. I flew to the Land of the Midnight Sun in the dead of winter, that I might become used to flying in the cold. I tried for six prizes, entered no contests. I worked with one purpose in view. That was to make a flight to Russia, swoop down by the hut in which lived my love and bear her away to freedom.

I pass over the details of study by which I found a machine especially adapted for my purpose. I transported it by sea to Sweden. From there to my destination was not far, but I must make the journey at one flight with one supply of fuel. One morning I rose to a height of 500 feet and drove my machine eastward. I purposely kept at a considerable height till I stood directly over the sphyren, that I might attract the least possible attention. From where I was poised was a slanting course down to the hut. I hoped that she might be outside, but she was not. I descended to her door. All was silent. I was about to leave the machine to enter the hut when I saw her face at the window, and in another moment she was sitting beside me on the machine. I had provided for starting by fitting my machine with apparatus especially adapted to the purpose, and though keepers were by this time running toward us from every direction, we rose above them and the shots they sent up in time to save ourselves.

After a ride high in the air we came down in Sweden, nearly frozen. From there we traveled southward, not stopping till we reached Mississippi, where we took a steamer.

We are now both in America and are soon to be married.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN H. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

AN eight dollar suit seems to look well on your dearest chum, but when you try one yourself—well, that's another story.

Most any of us can read the signs of the time nowadays because they are painted on all the billboards.

In quarrelsome time prepare to make peace profitable.

No wonder we are all so worn and tired out; we are chased by an army of microbes day and night.

When a woman suffers in silence it takes all of her time and strength to tell her neighbors about it.

No roast, whether verbal or culinary, is much relieved if it is overdone.

The reason why a woman seldom listens to her husband is because she has heard it all before.

Longing.
I'd like to duck this care and strife
And go to lead the quiet life.
Far from the busy, bustling throng,
If I could take some things along.

Let's see, my books I want to take,
My yacht to sail around the lake,
Three trunks of useful things to wear,
A hammock and my easy chair.

My grand piano—yes, indeed,
And, not to do the thing by half,
An operatic phonograph.

Oh, yes, the simple life for me!
I want to live it, as you see.
Out into the busy city ways
For quiet, rural, rustic days.

His Experience.
"Does her father object to young men?"
"Sometimes he does."
"How did you find him?"
"Something of a kkker."

Scared.
"Don't you dare let your dog bite me, miss."
"He will if you don't get out of the way."
"You will be sorry."
"Why?"
"Because I am cold pisen."
"Oh, come here, doggie, come here!"

But Not Remunerative.
"My investments are doing any way."
"Yes, but you know you have been owing me a long time."
"True, but can't you give me credit for my good investments?"
"At that I can't see that they increase my balance at the bank."

Lost It.
"Did you ever see a girl who met her ideal?"
"Yes."
"What happened?"
"Oh, she lost it."
"How?"
"Married it."

How He Feels.
"There is only one thing about this vegetable diet that suits me."
"Really?"
"Truly."
"And what is that?"
"The absence of the butcher's bill."

The Common View.
"He is a gruffer pure and simple."
"Got the goods on him?"
"Yes. It is a sure case."
"Couldn't cover his trail?"
"No; he is a crook."
"Worse than that; he is a dub."

Needed the Money.
"Would you rather write for the present or the future?"
"For the future, except for one thing."
"What is that?"
"I have to live in the present."

Business Head.
"I wish I knew how stocks were going."
"I have some inside information."
"More it over toward me."
"For thanks? I'll trade you a hunch for a lurch."

Deaf to Figurative Language.
"She has such beautiful laughing eyes."
"Laughing eyes?"
"Yes. Did you never notice?"
"I never heard them laugh."

Excellent.
"They make a good pair."
"Who?"
"The man with horse sense and the horse with something like human intelligence."

Misunderstood.
"He gave up a fortune for a smile."

Presence of Mind.

A visitor to an insane asylum was walking in the grounds when a man came up to him and entered into conversation. After walking about for some time, discussing topics suggested by the place, the two set out on a tour of inspection, the man, apparently an official, inviting the visitor to go over the asylum. At length they reached the foot of a flight of steps, up which the guide led the way, and at the top the visitor found himself out upon a roof, a height of more than a hundred feet from the ground. As they gazed below his companion started him suddenly by proposing to see who could jump farthest toward the ground! Not until then had it dawned upon the visitor that his guide was mad. Mercifully he was a man of ready wit, and his wit saved the madman's life. "Oh, anybody can jump down," said the visitor. "Let us go down and see who can jump to the top!" The madman thought it a good idea, and, retracing their steps, the two began their jump from the earth instead of from the roof.

The Mammoth Cave Rat.

The cavern rat found in the Mammoth cave is of a soft bluish color, with white neck and feet. It has enormous eyes, black as night, but quite unprovided with an iris. These eyes are perfectly insensible to light, and when the experiment has been made of catching a cavern rat and turning it loose in bright sunlight it blunders about, striking itself against everything, is unable to provide itself with food and finally falls down dead. In its native depths, however, it is able to lead a comfortable enough existence, as its enormously long whiskers are so extremely sensitive that they enable it to find its way rapidly through the darkness. The principal food of the cavern rat consists of a kind of large cricket of a pale yellow color and, like most other cave dwellers, itself perfectly blind.

Life of Roosevelt and His Strenuous Hunt in the Deep Wilds of Africa!

The Semi-Weekly Bee one year and the Book for $1.50, price of book alone

The book comprises nearly four hundred large octavo pages, printed on fine paper and beautifully bound, with scores of magnificent, full page photographic engravings of scenes in the heart of Africa; its dark mysterious forests, mighty rivers and far stretching plains; with pictures of lions, elephants, giraffes and of other strange animals, hitherto unknown to civilization, that Theodore Roosevelt has killed.

What a scene for a thrilling story! Africa the Dark Continent, the Land of Mystery. Mere descriptions of it have always been interesting. The accounts of Livingstone and Stanley have sold heavily in United States, but the story of Theodore Roosevelt, who is one of us; the every day, intimate history as told by the friends and companions of his trip, has a fascination absolutely incalculable.
